Death of Charles J. Reynolds.

We are once again called upon to chronicle the passing out of another life, intimately connected with Keeseville annals, in the death of Charles J. Reynolds which occurred on Sunday morning, Dec. 8. Mr. Reynolds had been much out of health for several months, but the end come with unforeseen suddenness at last.

He was born in Keeseville 76 years ago, and was the son of the late Joseph Reynolds, a prominent citizen of other days and connected with the publication of the first paper printed here. The son, Charles, spent his early years in Keeseville, serving as clerk in the C. S. Taylor store for 16 years. In 1870 he married Miss Kate Spaulding, of Ausable Forks. Of the union five sons were born, but one of whom survives, Joe, late of Edmonton, Alberta, and who expects to return to that city, having come east less than a year ago because of his father's illness.

The family lived for 20 years at GrandFo rks, North Dakota, returning to Keeseville about seven years ago
